16th Annual Leaders In Life Youth Conference set for March 12, 2015.

The Leaders in Life (LIL) Youth Conference is empowering youth to let their voices be heard by presenting the 16th annual youth leadership conference on Thursday, March 12, 2015 at the Rabobank Convention Center from 8:45 a.m. – 2:00 p.m.

Approximately 200 middle schools through high school students attend the conference every year, which is organized for teens by teens.

“Students throughout the county have planned every aspect of this conference themselves hoping to benefit the community and achieving the recurring theme “Can You Hear Our Rising Voices?,”” said LIL executive committee member Susan Heredia.

During the Leaders in Life Youth Conference attendees will have the chance to experience new and exciting people through the available workshops concerning information on colleges, businesses, youth organizations and much more.

All students will also have the opportunity to visit the resource fair and obtain information from local community organizations on how they can get involved and volunteer in the community. The resource fair is also a great place for students to learn about services available to them.

Over the years the LIL Conference has hosted nationally recognized speakers to kick off the beginning of the conference. The conference will be closed by our Key Note Speaker: Cedric Crawford, who will deliver an impactful message and ask teens to make their voices heard!

Local youth are encouraged to attend the conference by contacting their activities directors or school counselor. The cost for the conference is $15.00 and it is open to all students in grades 6 - 12. For further information on registration, contact Sheri McWilliams at shmcwilliams@kern.org.

For general information, contact Daryl Thiesen at 661.852.5649 or Susan Heredia at 661.852.5649.
